Faculty

Students in Mr. Messina's English II classes find panels enjoyable and different from the every day schedule. Panel members are Sam Ewing, Paul Kindinger, Barbara Bailey, Meredith Risedorph, Carol Stone, and Arla P. [redacted], with Mr. Messina looking on.

English, essential for communication, is required three of the four academic years at RHS. During these years a study from the basic principles of English through many periods of literature are encountered.

English Is Designed

Carrie Mahan takes the role of Act 2 Caesar in her study of Julius CAESAR.

Mrs. Dudley urges student participation in her classes. Mrs. McR. Potter, Dick Brown, and John Hart give a reading. Carolyn Lowe has illustrates the art of public speaking for her classmates and Mrs. Dudley.

Speech, reading, writing, vocabulary and spelling, and SRA Reading Books are all used to assist the pupils in expressing what they want to say or how they feel about things.

to Improve Expression

The second class study of the drama unit continues in Mrs. Short's class with the addition of books to write in. The objective of Mr. Short's class is to learn to express their feelings in paper or action.

Mr. Short finds tape recorders a great aid which helps the students develop good speech fundamentals.

Students working on the E-TV newscast include Matt Miller

Learning to use good judgement, clear and concise English, a factual approach to current events, to apply journalistic techniques and to consider a possible audience, are all the purposes that the course aims to cover.

The course also provides experience and texts for those journalism students studying to assist in the publication of The Leader, appearing by-weekly, and the Ramblin' Wreck.

Journalism Leads to Work

Student Richard Bloomer
LIVEWIRE editor
Meredith Riesendorf, Nancy
Ludeman

Taking the last step in the cycle of completing an edition are Richard Bloomer, production manager, Mary Goodwin, Nancy Ludeman and Meredith Riesendorf.
10

Student publication of Reading High School, THE LIVEWIRE. Here again members of the staff give freely of themselves—gathering and writing the news, feature stories and entertainment, copyreading, dummying, stenciling, mimeoscoping, proofreading and printing.

The deadline comes with feelings of anxiety . . . the finished product brings looks of relieved accomplishment.

Sharon Albright, Mary Simmons, Joyce Rarick, Editor Carla Foote, Faith Michael, Merideth Risedorff, JoAnn Marsh, Bonnie Robillard, Inez Bailey, Janet Miller, Advisor Mrs. Worley and Mary Goodwin are busy meeting the deadline for the school paper.

on Student Publications

Working at the mimeoscope under the direction of Mrs. Worley are Janet Miller and Faith Michael. Mary Goodwin, Merideth Risedorff, Inez Bailey, Joyce Rarick, Nancy Robillard, and Sharon Albright are working at the desks to complete THE LIVEWIRE before the deadline.

Developing better world understanding, becomes a long-range objective for students of the French language. While struggling diligently with conjugations "... vais ... vas ... va ..." students unwittingly are strengthening the cultural bonds between two countries. Being able to write what they can comprehend, speak and read, students are acquainting themselves with the cultural background: that is, the living habits, conditions and such artistic expression as music and literature - of the French people

French

Tom Natale, Cindy Newbauer, Jenny McLean, John Szwaleski, David Horn, Phil Hersha, Jean Fink, Errol Fenstermaker, Gwen Bradshaw "parlent francats" in a conversation circle in French class.

Listening to and comprehending a French lecture in the language lab are Vicki Luce, Ron Baker, Sam Ewing, JoAnn Marsh, Cathy Carter, Carolyn Smith, Linda Luce, Marilyn Ashton, Carol Stone and Arla Phenicie.

Wendell Shopbell, Jean Fink, Errol Fenstermaker, and Debbie McFann listen to French drills on records in the library conference room.

Opens New Vista

CADET ROUSSELLE, a film strip, adds interest and lore.

Judy Mackey, Jack Cole, Tom Briggs, Ed Pollins, Dick Bloomer, Lee Phenicie, and Bob McIntyre test their mathematical ability through the Re-enactment Math Competition Exam given in the fall of the year.

Working their algebra problems on the board to aid other students in understanding the assignment are Jean Molby, Jim Brouse, and Phil Hersha.

Mr. Bucklew explains to his general math students the problems done by Stella Montgomery, Bernadine Bassage, and Phil Houghtby.

In order to stimulate students to think critically, the mathematics department strives to present problems that call for the scientific methods of reasoning.

Math Is

"I hope this is right," Mary Goodwin says as she and Vaughn Coolman explain problems from their daily algebra assignment.

Other classes are designed for more specific objectives and future plans of the participants. Stress is laid on courses of a college preparatory nature. The ability to distinguish actual fact from fallacy - the fruit of labor merited by the hard-working students.

"Are you getting these?" questions Mr. Brillhart of Jack Cole, Lee Phencie and Richard Bloomer also ponder over a phase of solid geometry.

a Tool for Every Student

Shirley Gauvey, Sue Carter, and Cathy Carter are busy constructing perpendiculars in large letters as Mr. Bucklew looks over their shoulders.

Jr. High Math

Seventh and eighth grade mathematics is taught by Mrs. Copeland.

Teaching basic mathematics and preparing for future math courses are two of the objectives of junior high math.

Mrs. Copeland finds her duties as teacher challenging but rewarding.

Eileen Brandon shows Janice Kramer the formula for a circle.

Mary Kaye Cook and Norene Sellers, eighth grade mathematic students, demonstrate the different types of fractions to Mrs. Copeland and the class.

Testing reveals classroom success

New World of

Through the study of art, students at both senior and junior high levels are introduced to a new world of expression and creation.

Mrs. Self, art teacher, tries to develop students' artistic ability and appreciation of art. They may in turn realize art as a possible hobby or future occupation.

Mrs. Self looks on with approval as junior high students place mosaics into colorful and various designs.

Creativity Through Art

Painting cork coasters is still another craft taught to the art classes. Here seventh graders, Nancy Clawson, Jean Benge, Connie Arnold, Cynthia Benge and Sally Norris, work carefully and slowly to do their best.

Sandy Luce, Cindy Brown, Kathy Foor, Connie Quackenbush, Sheryl Boyd and Roberta Kalder, junior high students, are creating designs with real and ostrich feather paper.

Testing their science lore are:
Alice Balcom, Jean Fink, Sandy
Carpenter, Gwen Bradshaw, Nancy
McKinley, Sharon Bell, Ken Firestone, Kaye Anstead and Dick Brown

David Horne, Stan Dunton, and Larry Towers try their luck with a general science experiment.

Here one of the subjects, which is growing in importance as each year goes by, is taught. In this age of astronauts and missiles, students at Reading High learn the basic scientific principles for the building of later information, and for developing the idea that science is a molder of modern life.

Seventh and eighth grade students, who meet each day, learn to relate their past experiences to the principles of science.

Science Is Stressed at All Levels

Mr. Crume points out the intricacies of the human skull to Tim Hersha, Tom Hurst, Craig Sanderson, Joe Johnson, Mike Potter, Rod Whitney and Bob Adams.

In general science, students learn to develop an attitude of interest about the world they live in, use scientific methods in solving everyday problems and learn respect for other peoples ideas, which are different from their own. Basic science and a broad understanding of the subject are accomplished by this course.

Biology is another phase of science in which students learn to understand the phenomena of living things. Both lab work and textbook study add to the student's knowledge.

Mr. Crume lectures on the diagram as projected on the screen to Roberta Kalder, Joe Johnson, Jim Warner and Eileen Brandon.

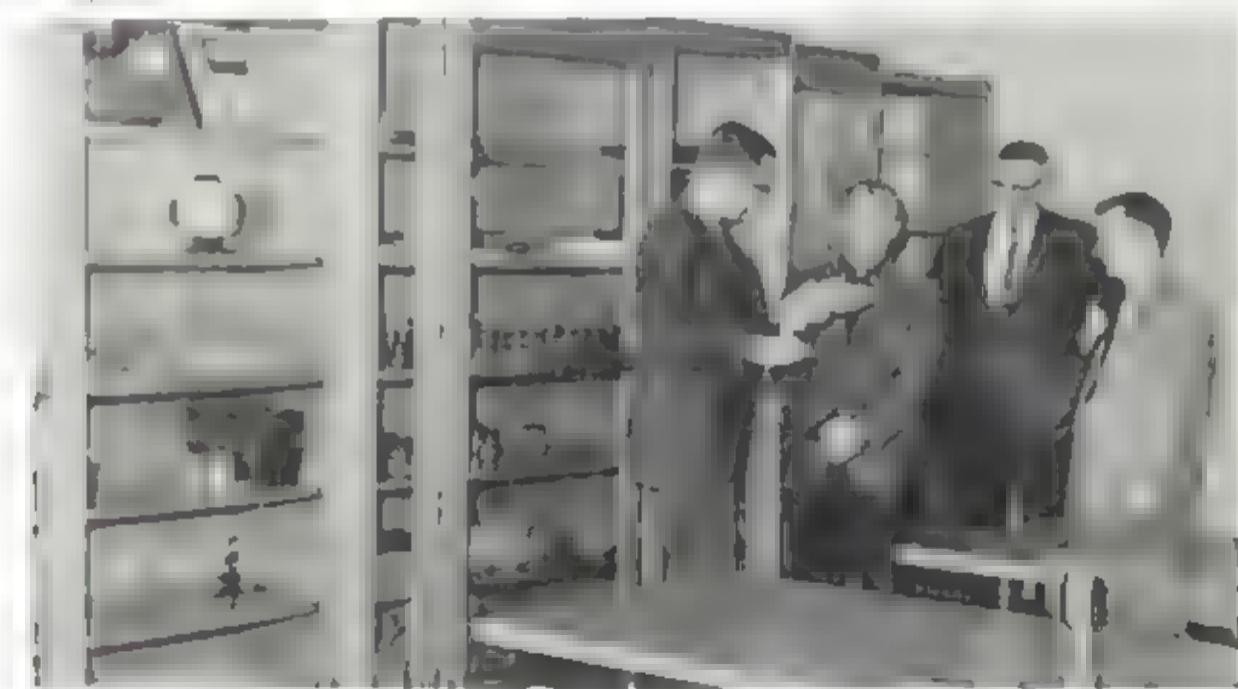

An instrument measuring wave motion aids Mr. Brillhart in teaching physics to his students. Jack Cole, Ed Pollins, Lee Phemicie, Rick Ferguson, and Bob McIntyre.

Mr. Brillhart points out important parts of film strips for students Ed Pollins, Bob McIntyre, Lee Phemicie, Jack Cole, and Rick Ferguson.

By the use of books . . .
laboratory experiments . . .
movies and film strips . . . individual research in their own projects the senior high science teachers express their objectives to the student

Science teachers Mr. Crume, Mr. Shafer, Mr. Cockle, and Mr.

Bruce McClellan, Mary Goodwin, Dave Dospo, Becky Pridgeon, Tom Briggs and Betty Reppert experiment with burettes.

Science Studies

Mr. Bucklew is always ready and willing to assist students. He carefully observes Marcia Carter and Dick Sanderson as they work with the Bunsen Burner.

Point
the Way

Mr. Gustafson and Mr. Beehler strive to give an understanding of the nation's history, economics and democratic government.

Mr. Gustafson lectures economic students on corporations and trust companies.

Social Studies Relate

Mr. Beehler listens to Dorine Bricker, Noreen Sellers, Duane Van Fleet, and Vicki Ewing in a history panel discussion.

Stanley Beem, Kathy Foor, Cindy Brown, Joe Jaspers and Connie Quachenhush listen to Jackie Bucklew's geography report.

Sue Gauvey, Marcia Rubel, Lee Hubbell, Iva in From, Roger Boyd, and Mary Swank keep up with current events by reading SENIOR SCHOLASTIC in world history class.

Past to Present

Clayton Sanderson presents his S. History report to panel Dick Sanderson, Carol Sharrar, and Mary Simmons.

Commercial Classes

Typing office material, legal forms, composing letters, building speed and accuracy . . . skills in writing and transposing shorthand . . . learning the correct procedure in receiving a telephone message . . . using calculators . . . different methods of filing . . . acquainting the student with problems that arise in recording business transactions. This is just some of the material that is covered in the commercial courses at RHS.

The purpose of a commercial department is to acquaint the student with the way an office is managed and the skills which are necessary.

Jo McClland and Sharon Swaney learn the use of the telephone, while Linda Ludeman and Joyce Rarick stencil.

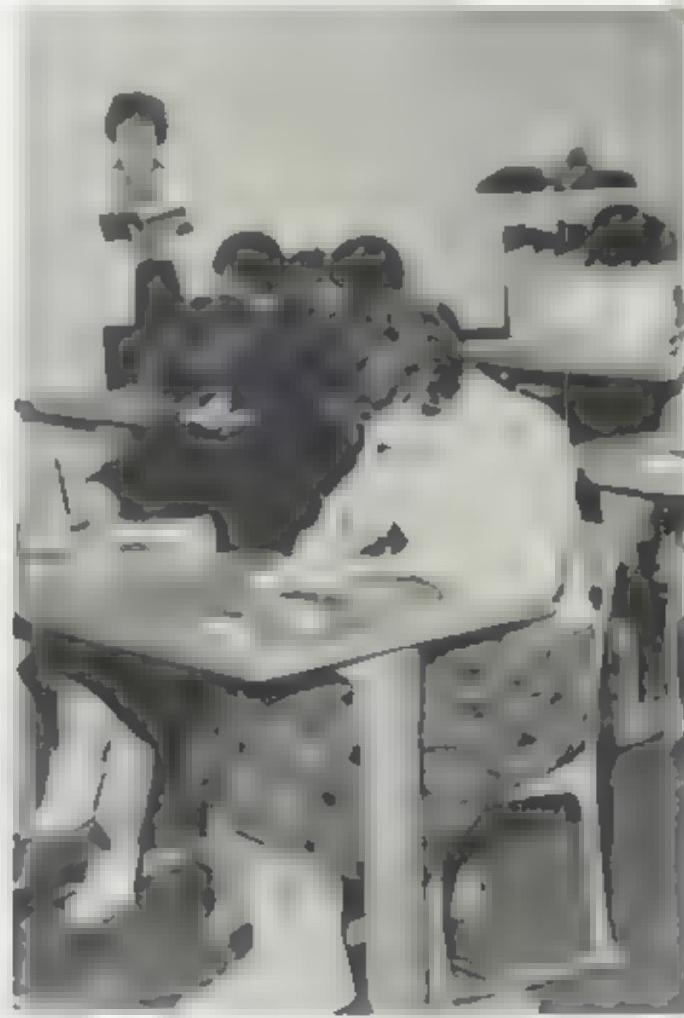

Linda Ludeman, Sharon Swaney, do office placement under supervision of Mr. Orth

Train for Careers

Joyce Rarick, Inez Bailey, Pat Cardman, JoAnn Kahn, Brenda Risedorph, Leonna McLain, Alex Sussex and Linda Ludeman take a Series R Test in bookkeeping.

Clara Jones and Linda May accompany the rest of the class in a dictation drill from Mrs. Orth Carol Sharrar and Clara Jones find sewing enjoyable as well as rewarding.

Homemaking Techniques

Mary Simmons discusses a poster while Charlene Gerber and Bonnie Petrie work on their budgets.

Students obtain much experience in preparing and serving meals. Julie McCalla, Phyllis Greene, Mary King, Pat Fink, Pat Martin and Iola Greenlee are about to enjoy a jello dessert.

C. L. Cook, Phyllis Miller, and Bernadine Bussoze are busily preparing a meal.

During the school schedule, time must be allotted for leisure. Here Bonnie Raupp and Linda Kulow catch up on last minute work.

Prepare Girls for the Future

The color and design of fashions play a large part in a person's appearance. LuAnn From advises Betty Warren on the best colors for her.

"I made it myself," will be Judy Dunbar's reply when friends inquire to where she purchased her new fashion. Here Judy is making a few last touches - then her garment will be ready to wear.

Industrial Arts, Agriculture

Mr. A. Clark, Farm & Power, teaching agriculture to the raw recruits

Alex S. ex., Terri A. ex., Jerry Eye, Lester Devore, and Jerry Springer, learning about welding.

Offer Practical Experiences

"This is how it is done" - explains Roger Kaufman as he demonstrates to Jerry Springer how to sharpen the saw.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Briner, already awaiting completion of repairs being made by Chuck Briner, Bob Hamilton, and Arnold Simmons.

Voices Blend,

The senior high chorus, consisting of (ROW ONE): Julie McCalla, Linda Moyer, Beverly Adams, Diana Nichols. (ROW TWO): Bill McCune, Larry Clark, and George Sines practice many hours with Mrs. Eitzen, director, and JoAnn Marsh, pianist.

The "Hi-Fi's" provide vocal entertainment for many of the various school and community activities. Sue Hammond, Pat Fink, Bonnie Brouse, Janet Miller, and Linda May, with the guidance of Mrs. Eitzen, make plans for a forthcoming program.

Judy Hubbell, Tammy Lane, and Becky Riedgeon compose a saxophone trio, which received a second rating at the Regional Contest. Judy Hubbell was awarded a first rating at the State contest for her saxophone solo.

Instruments

Ratings of first and second were received respectively at the Regional and State Contests by the clarinet quartet, Vaughn Coolman, Jan Mackey, Marcia Rubel, and Pat VanFleet.

"A" Band

Play in Harmony

The flute quartet, consisting of Linda Galaway, Jeri Reynolds, John Kramer, and Sharon Thieme, received first and second ratings at the Regional and State Contests, respectively.

Supplying a program of "good" music that has survived the ages and that by modern contemporary composers, music which is demanding of the performers' abilities and has depth of content, participating in parades, shows, concerts and contests provide the band member with satisfactory reward for the efforts made.

To challenge students to the fullest of their capacity of performance, thinking, reasoning and adjusting is an important factor in band.

Mr. Visosky hopes to make instrumental music one of the most enriching and rewarding experiences in the lives of the students.

ROW ONE: Jeri Reynolds, Sandy Carpenter, Pat Ellis, Norma Witzek, Jean Mobly, Joan Trott, Sharon Anquist, J. J. Hubbard. Lorey Ryan, Ellamae Nichol and Marcia Brown direct attention to the birdie as Bear explains how to serve in badminton.

Jean Molby, blocks a shot by Barbara Moyer while teammates Gloria Rarick and Becky Pridgeon hurry to assist.

Brenda Kunkle prepares to send the volleyball across the net, as Betty Simmons, Wava Frahm, and Sharon Swank wait to help.

RACING: Karen Peters, Martha Taylor. GROUP ONE: Connie Quackenbush, Cindy Brown, Cathy Mann. GROUP TWO: Kathy Foor, Jeanne Marquart, Carol Goodband, Sandy Luce, Eileen Brandon. GROUP THREE: Roberta Kalder, Catherine Dickey, Carol Smith, Lillian Moon.

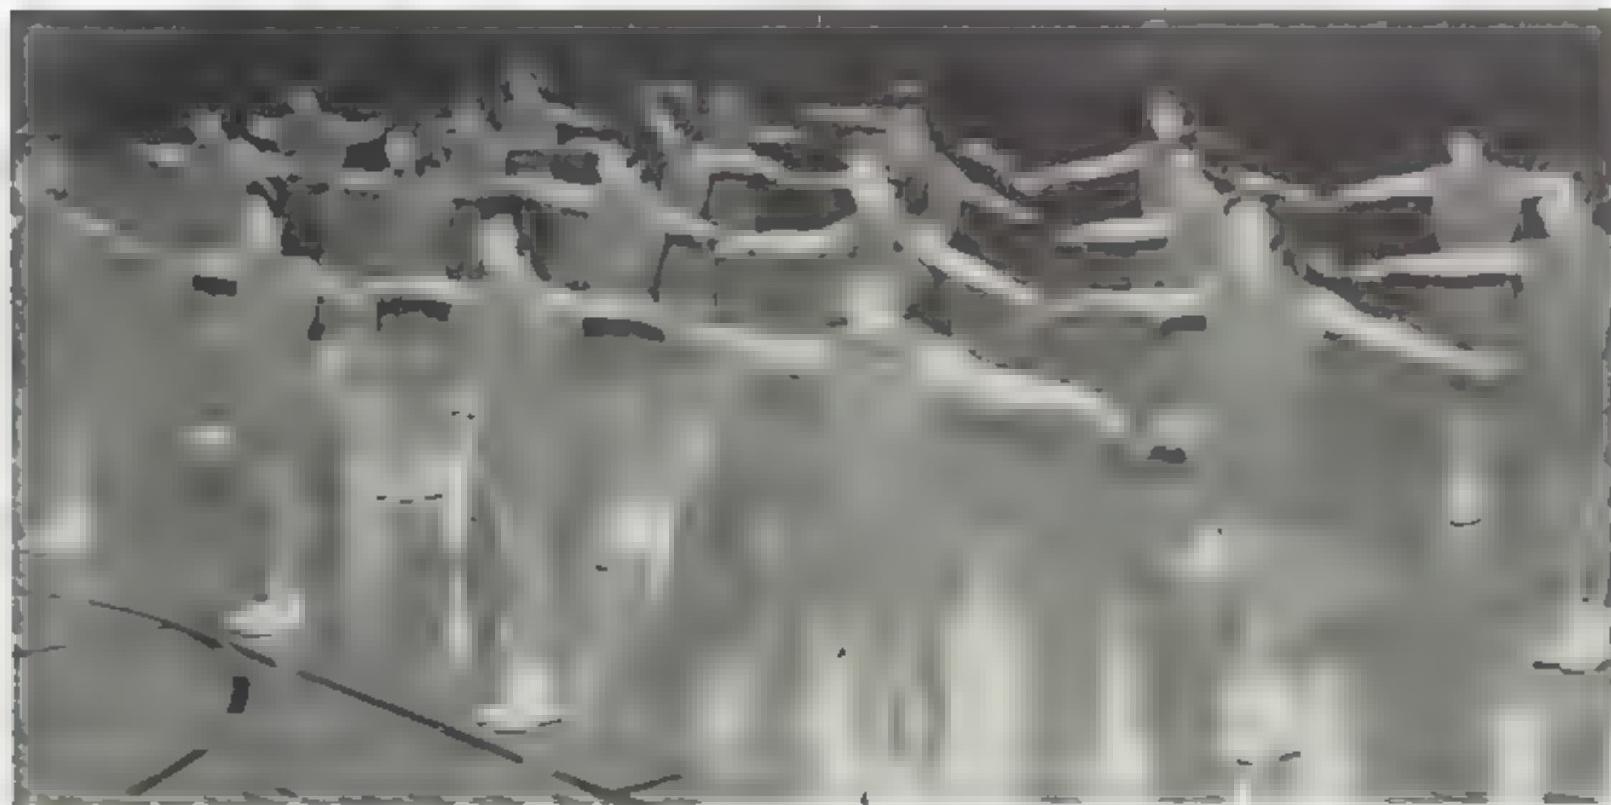

"It is of Great Importance that we take immediate steps to ensure that every American child be given the opportunity to make and keep himself physically fit - fit to learn, fit to understand, to grow in grace and stature, to fully live."

- John F. Kennedy

Aims for Fitness for All

Yolanda Esterline prepares to kick the ball as fellow teammate and Mrs. Bear look on. Kick ball is just one of the many games the girls participate in during the winter.

George Winchell awaits anxiously for the ball as Stan Stier and Tom Smith jump for the tip off.

Gene Parker not "Willy Makit"

Dan Briggs, Carl Kuhn and Larry Jaspers take lessons from Coach Gustafson on how to serve a volleyball.

Ron Howe, Dennis Barr, and Tom Smith are in suspended animation as their opponents Dave Lambright, Bob Irene, Gary Woodard, Dan Briggs, Dennis Benjamin, Dennis Grunden and Jesse Godsey try to send the ball back over the net.

Diana Nichols checks the controls before she starts to drive.

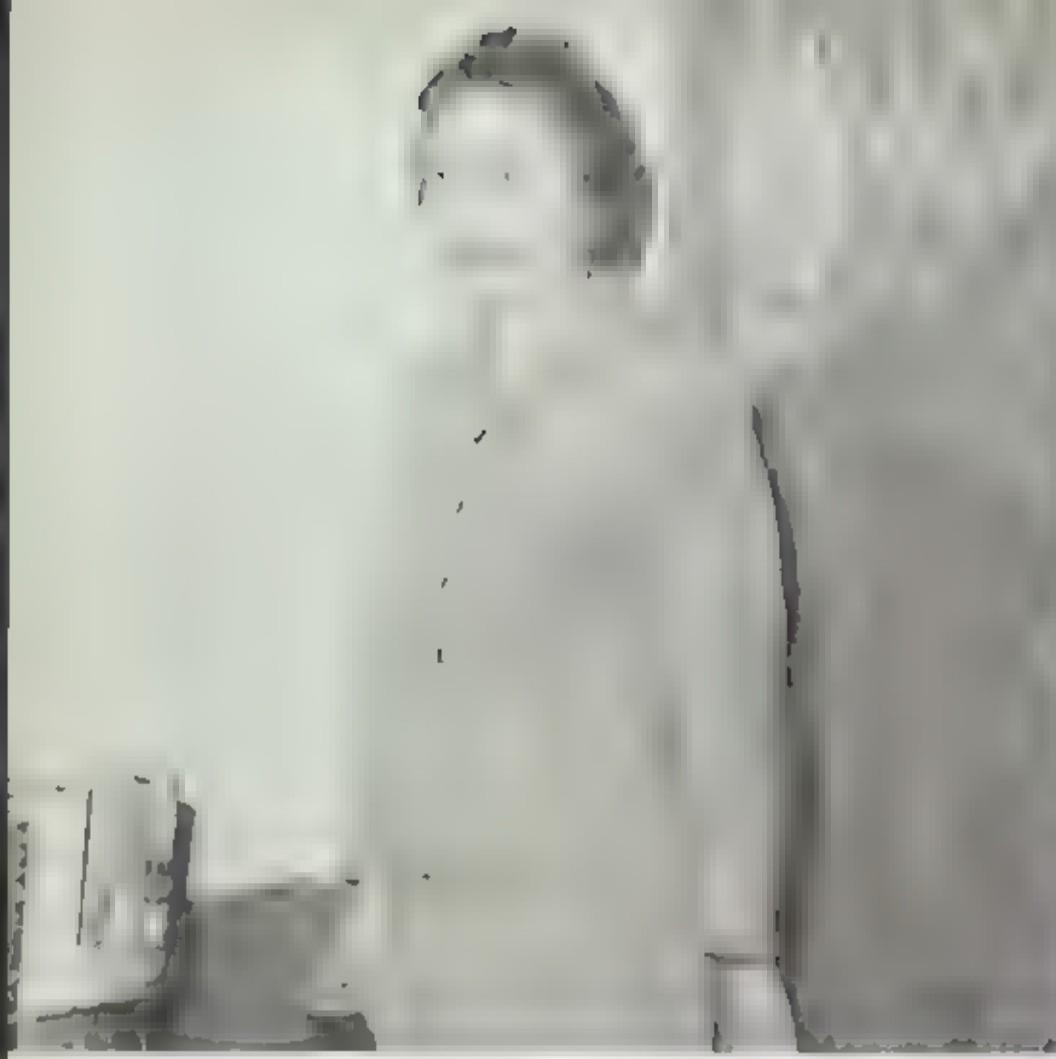

Mr. Spahr, driver education teacher, gives Marilynn Ashton a few pointers before she proceeds to make a turn.

"Always make sure your side-view mirrors are in good condition," explains Mr. Gustafson, driver education teacher, to Geno Gabriele and Bill Hyatt.

Scott Gibney discusses the different shapes of warning signs with his classmates - as Mr. Beehler, driver education teacher, observes.

"The Play's the Thing" for Seniors

Judy Hubbell meets her cousin, Linda Gowthrop, from the city.

Pat VanFleet looks a little perturbed as she enters the scene.

"Oh, my aching head!" exclaims Mary Roost.

Jack Cole puts a damper on some plans as he enters the room, "Where's my razor?"

While waiting to go on stage Bruce McCullan and Betty Ruppert have a quick talk and a short snack.

"Is a guy ever a lip-stick?" could very well be what Pat Fink is saying, while Bonnie Brouse patiently sits Gene Parker quickly carries out his share from scene two.

for Juniors

"Oh, once you get on to it there's nothing to it at all," Dave Dospay could be saying as he demonstrates the art of putting on lipstick to Bill McCune and Larry Title

While Mr. Messina, play director, is talking to another member of the cast Carolyn Howell carefully pins a boutonniere.

Beverly Adams, a member of the make-up committee teases the hair of Janet Miller.

Groups such as this one consisting of Al Carpenter, John Lowe, Gene Parker, and Clayton Sanderson gathered while waiting to be called on stage.

Experience Is Gained Through FTA

Student members of FTA can easily determine whether the teaching career appeals to them through actual experiences in the classroom. Assistance was provided by FTA members to elementary teachers.

ROW ONE: Marilyn Ashton, Jo McClelland, Inez Bailey, Charla Foote, Rosalie Dils, Joyce Rarick, Jane Fink, Gene Parker, Dick Molby, Mrs. Orth, advisor; president, Pat Van Fleet.
ROW TWO: Sue Gauvey, Jo Ann Marsh, Arla Phenicie, Carolyn Smith, Linda Galloway, Betty Reppert, Linda May.
